Lettre de motivation – Xavier Robitaille

Dear Antal Poland,

I'm applying for the Finance Project Manager – Transformation AP/P2P/R2R role. With 25 years in insurance and finance, the last decade delivered as PMO lead and interim finance manager on large-scale operational transformations, I bring the specific blend this role needs: hands-on process redesign, governance discipline, and the ability to move complex stakeholder groups in the same direction under tight delivery pressure.

What makes me fit: I've led end-to-end process transformations in shared services and BPO environments—closing redesigns, controls frameworks, regulatory reporting workflows. I'm comfortable with both Waterfall and Agile methodologies, and I know how to build PIDs that actually stick with clients. More importantly, I know how to identify what will genuinely break a project early (dependencies, scope creep, stakeholder misalignment) and fix it before it becomes a crisis. I've worked as the bridge between Finance, Operations, and IT teams where miscommunication is the default risk.

On a recent 18-month mandate, I led the PMO for a life insurance operating model redesign across three European entities—streamlining O2C and R2R processes, resetting governance forums, managing vendor coordination, and securing buy-in from both CFO and COO offices. We delivered on time, within scope, and I stayed embedded to support the transition phase. That's the kind of accountability I operate from.

The honest piece: I'm a seasoned freelance consultant, not seeking a permanent role. I thrive on mission-driven work where the stakes are clear and the timeline is real. If Antal's structure allows for contract-based delivery on this transformation, and you need someone who lands running without ramp-up time, I'm available immediately and fully remote from Poland works perfectly.

Let's talk.
