I bring 25 years in insurance and finance—the kind of deep sector knowledge that matters when complexity, regulation, and delivery pressure collide. I've spent my career exactly where technical requirements meet business constraints: PMO governance, finance transformation, regulatory reporting redesigns. I know what works because I've rebuilt operating models, closed books on time under pressure, and aligned CFO offices with actuarial and IT teams pulling in different directions.

Most recently, I led a major finance process redesign for a mid-sized insurer where control frameworks had become a bottleneck. We restructured month-end closing from 12 working days down to 7, rebuilt reporting architecture to cut regulatory prep time by 40%, and embedded AMOA discipline so the business and IT actually spoke the same language. That's the work I do best—visible, measurable impact where stakes are high.

I'm structured as a senior independent consultant (Expert Zone Advisory SAS). I work on interim and project bases, which means I'm deployed fast and leave clean. If you need someone embedded for 6–18 months who speaks both control and delivery, I'm effective. If you need a permanent CFO-office hire, that's probably not the fit.

Let's talk if the role sits in that zone—transformation work with real complexity, where a consultant with sector depth and no learning curve adds genuine value. Grab time on my calendar if it makes sense.
