Re : Business Transformation Project Manager

Running a Transformation Office portfolio in parallel with platform delivery, where governance, regulatory readiness, workforce readiness and benefits tracking all compete for the same milestone gates, means one person has to own the coordination logic across every workstream, not just one.

I've built that kind of coordination before, in insurance rather than pharmacy. At CNP Assurances, I rebuilt investment accounting production under Solvency II constraint across 350 billion euros of assets under management, coordinating cutover, UAT and data validation across accounting, actuarial and IT teams, delivered on time in 18 months. On data migration programs I've owned the UAT cycles directly: cahiers des charges, defect triage, multi-cycle test execution, and business sign-off before go-live, the same discipline this role asks for across a much wider Transformation Office portfolio. I've also run regulatory-readiness workstreams (ACPR, Solvency II, IFRS 17) where SOPs and reporting had to clear validation gate by gate before a milestone could close, close in structure to what REMS and regulatory validation demand here.

I haven't worked in specialty pharmacy or US healthcare. My regulatory reference points are Solvency II and IFRS rather than REMS itself.

I can walk you through how this maps onto your milestone structure on a call.
