I'm a transformation consultant with 25 years in insurance and finance—exactly the combination VHV needs right now.

My core strength: I bridge the gap between IT roadmaps and business reality. I've spent two decades running PMO governance, aligning stakeholders across Finance, Actuariat, Operations, and IT, and delivering programs where technical complexity meets regulatory constraints and tight timelines. That's precisely the skill set your role demands—coordinating initiatives between Business, Operations, and IT while reporting to COO & CIO.

Most recently, I've led major transformation programs in insurance: process redesign, operating model refactoring, regulatory reporting overhauls, and system integration projects. One example: I rebuilt the PMO and governance framework for a €50M+ program spanning multiple business units, which reduced milestone slippage by 40% and clarified decision authority across 15+ stakeholders. I've also managed AMOA and delivery on complex IT initiatives where the stakes were high and alignment was fragile.

I'm honest about the transition: I've worked as an independent consultant and interim manager, not in a permanent role. But VHV's moment—post-acquisition integration, new market positioning, strategic partnerships ramping up—is exactly where someone who can move fast, see across silos, and drive discipline without politics adds the most value. I work best when there's real complexity to solve.

I'm based in France but have worked across Europe and am open to Milan. Let's talk about what your priorities are in the first 100 days.
