Re : Project Manager Consultant

NORRIQ's Financial Services practice sits exactly where this role lives: aligning Business and IT on mid-scale transformation programmes for banks and insurers, with governance and delivery quality as the real currency. That is the kind of engagement I look for.

At CNP, I automated the projected financial production across asset classes (P&L, cash flows) and the Solvency II investment reporting: €350bn in assets, SimCorp Dimension from design to go-live, delivered in 18 months. That programme required the same discipline this role asks for: structured governance, steering committees, and constant alignment between finance, actuarial, and IT stakeholders on a fixed timeline. At Coface, IFRS 9 was rolled out in stages over four years, with successive POCs, ECL methodology, accounting schemes, UAT, and coordination with the custodian CACEIS; I also built the investment Data Warehouse from the ground up, defining fields, table structure, and input/output controls. More recently, as senior programme director at Clearwater Analytics, I ran several parallel implementations of a SaaS R to R solution, with monthly sponsor committees at executive level and consolidated tracking of deliverables, milestones, and resources on a dedicated tool (Monday.com), including for the Luxembourg client Luxempart. That mission was run largely remotely, across distributed teams and time zones, which is second nature to me: I am comfortable leading steering committees, workshops, and stakeholder alignment sessions in hybrid or fully remote settings, using the same collaborative tools NORRIQ's clients rely on day to day.

Insurance and finance are the only two industries I have worked in over 25 years, and Brussels-based transformation in this sector is where I want to keep operating.

I operate as an independent consultant today. Nevertheless, I am perfectly open to a permanent role, directly or after an initial engagement period.

I would be happy to discuss how this experience applies to the specific programme NORRIQ is staffing in Brussels.

Best regards,

Xavier Robitaille
