Re : Data Operations Lead - Finance

KKR's plan to consolidate financial reporting across internal sources and fund administrators, replacing several parallel processes with a single model, sits exactly where I've spent most of my career: fixing fragmented finance operations under regulatory pressure.

I've rebuilt investment sub-ledgers from scratch, reconciling security-level positions between fund administrators and internal general ledgers, and designing the accounting schemas that keep IFRS 9 and IFRS 17 outputs consistent across sources. On data migration work, I've led the cutover of accounting interfaces, cleared aged suspense accounts, and run the UAT cycles that confirmed the new numbers matched the old ones before go-live. I've also implemented SimCorp Dimension and Clearwater Analytics end to end, from requirements through production, which means I understand what a reporting platform needs to hold up once it moves from pilot to daily use.

I haven't worked hands-on with Snowflake or Power BI. My platform depth is in SimCorp Dimension and Clearwater Analytics, and the accounting logic behind both.

Hybrid work is standard for me. My last engagement, at Clearwater, ran entirely through remote collaboration tools, so coordinating with Finance, Operations, and Technology across time zones isn't new territory.

I'd like to walk through how this maps to your transformation program, on a call.
