Re : Finance Integration Director (PMI)

A PE-backed services business scaling through acquisitions needs a playbook that works the second time, not just the first: consistent integration steps, a consolidated reporting set-up the CFO can trust across entities, and milestones tracked without drama. That is the specific gap this role closes.

I have built that kind of infrastructure from the ground up. At CNP, I automated the projected financial production across asset classes (P&L, cash flows) and the Solvency II investment reporting: €350bn in assets, SimCorp Dimension from design to go-live, delivered in 18 months. At Coface, IFRS 9 was rolled out in stages over four years: successive POCs, ECL methodology, accounting schemes, UAT, coordination with the custodian CACEIS, alongside the creation of an investment Data Warehouse (fields, table structure, input and output controls). More recently, as senior programme director at Clearwater, I ran several parallel implementations of an R2R SaaS solution, with monthly sponsor committees at executive level and consolidated tracking of deliverables, milestones and resources on a dedicated tool (Monday.com), including for a Luxembourg client, Luxempart. That combination, PMI discipline plus hands-on command of group reporting, month-end and year-end, and audit ownership, maps directly onto what the CFO needs here.

I operate as an independent consultant today. That said, a permanent role is entirely something I would consider, whether directly or after an initial engagement period, given how well this mandate fits my background in finance integration and reporting.

I would be happy to discuss how this experience applies to the integration playbook you are building.

Best regards,

Xavier Robitaille
