I bring 25 years of insurance and finance expertise to problems where technical depth, regulatory rigor, and execution discipline matter most. I've spent my entire career at the intersection of finance transformation, complex program delivery, and stakeholder alignment—the exact space where most initiatives stall.

My last three years working as interim Finance Manager and PMO lead for mid-cap insurers showed me what moves the needle. On a claims processing redesign, I helped a 200-person team cut month-end closing from 8 days to 3 while strengthening controls—saved €400K annually in overtime and system overhead. Earlier, I redesigned the entire regulatory reporting function for a mutual insurer, migrating 40+ data feeds off legacy systems and embedding AMOA governance that stuck after I left. These aren't theoretical wins; they came from knowing where finance, IT, and operations actually misalign, then fixing it.

I work best on missions with real complexity and visibility—the kind where you need someone who won't oversimplify and who actually gets why a CFO's priorities sometimes clash with what compliance needs. I'm freelance by design, not circumstance, which means I show up ready to deliver, not building a case for permanent headcount.
