I'm a senior consultant with 25 years in insurance and finance—the kind of profile you need when technical depth, regulatory reality, and delivery pressure collide.

I've spent my entire career at the intersection where Finance, Actuariat, and IT have to work together. My real strength isn't in the silo expertise; it's in translating between them. I design operating models that actually close the books on time. I run PMOs that stakeholders trust. I move regulatory reporting from "we'll figure it out" to "it's automated and audited." That's where I add the most value.

On my last two mandates, I redesigned the closing process for a €2B+ insurance mutual (cut cycle time 35%, reduced manual controls by 60%), and led a multi-year transformation program for a large financial services group—€4M+ in efficiency gains, zero critical delays. Both required me to hold the center while Finance pushed for speed, Risk pushed for control, and IT pushed for scope. I'm comfortable in that tension.

I'm built for interim or project work. I know the CFO office inside out. I can hit the ground immediately and leave a clean handoff. The trade-off is straightforward: you get someone who owns delivery and won't disappear into politics.

I'm open to the role. Let's have a quick conversation so you can tell me what you actually need solved.
