Dear Axys Recruiting Team,

I bring 25 years in insurance and finance transformation—the exact sector and skill set your Finance practice targets. My last five roles were all variations of what you're hiring for: redesigning finance operating models, rebuilding close processes, aligning actuarial and finance systems, and moving large teams through regulatory and organizational shifts. I know the friction points between CFO priorities, IT constraints, and the reality of day-to-day execution.

Most relevant: I led a full finance function redesign for a mid-market insurer (2022–2024)—process mapping, team restructuring, system migration, and control framework rebuild across 40+ FTEs. Delivered on time and under budget while keeping a distributed team aligned. I've also spent 18 months as interim Finance Manager at a group level, reporting to the CFO, which taught me how to read a boardroom and translate strategic intent into operational cadence. That's the dual competency Axys values: deep technical fluency and the ability to move stakeholders.

I'm currently independent (Expert Zone Advisory). I've enjoyed the flexibility and the ability to cherry-pick impact work, but I'm drawn to Axys because your model—deep sector expertise, human-centered delivery, and real investment in team development—matches how I actually want to work. Levallois-Perret suits me geographically.

The honest part: I've been freelance for three years. A return to a structured team environment, especially one with this culture, feels like the right move at this stage.

Let's talk. I'm available for a quick call at your convenience.

Best regards,
Xavier Robitaille
