Dear FTI Consulting Hiring Team,

I'm writing about the Director role in Business Transformation & Corporate Finance. What caught my attention: you work with complex value-creation situations where operational insight and financial rigour matter equally. That's exactly where I've built my career.

For 25 years, I've sat at the intersection of finance, operations, and regulatory constraints in insurance and banking. Most recently, I've led transformation programmes where the real work wasn't the strategy—it was making it stick. Closing redesigns that cut cycle time by 40%. PMO governance that actually controlled scope. Due diligence processes that surfaced what boards needed to see. I've managed teams through restructuring, built interim finance functions from scratch, and reported directly to CFOs and risk committees who needed clarity under pressure.

What matters for your clients: I don't just diagnose. I deliver. I've led programmes worth €50M+ in cost optimisation and regulatory remediation. I understand the mechanics of insurance balance sheets, the compliance stakes, and how to move large organisations without breaking them. I'm comfortable in the room with PE investors, audit committees, and operations teams who speak different languages.

One honest gap: I've worked primarily as interim Finance Manager and consultant, not in a permanent Director seat at a Big Four house. But that's also my edge—I've moved fast across multiple industries and org structures. I learn quickly and I don't need a long ramp.

I'm based in France and available to discuss how my track record maps to your transformation pipeline. Happy to talk through specific client situations where my experience would add immediate value.

Best,

Xavier Robitaille
