Re : Program Manager

Leading a migration and transformation programme across a highly regulated financial services environment, with multiple workstreams, senior stakeholders and delivery partners to coordinate, is exactly the kind of mandate I've built my career around.

At CNP Assurances, I rebuilt the investment accounting production chain under Solvency II constraints: 350 billion euros in assets under management, an 18-month programme, delivered on time and audit-ready. That work required the same governance discipline this role calls for: managing risk, dependencies and reporting across finance, actuarial and IT teams who don't naturally speak the same language. I've also led SimCorp Dimension and Clearwater Analytics implementations end to end, from design through cutover, including data migration, interface bascule and UAT campaigns in enterprise environments where errors carry regulatory consequences, not just operational ones. On the governance side, I hold PMP certification (2025), which formalizes a practice I've run informally for two decades: structured planning, risk logs and stakeholder reporting that senior business and technology teams can actually use.

Hybrid delivery is standard practice for me. My most recent engagement with Clearwater ran on distributed teams across time zones, and I'm comfortable running programme governance and stakeholder cadence remotely without losing delivery rigor.

Happy to walk through the CNP and SimCorp programmes in more detail if that's useful.
