I bring 25 years of insurance and finance expertise—the kind that matters when technical requirements, regulatory constraints, and delivery pressure collide. I've spent my entire career solving problems at that intersection: refactoring finance operating models, designing controls frameworks, and delivering transformation programs where clarity and execution discipline separate success from failure.

What I actually do: I step into senior finance, PMO, and business analyst roles where the work requires someone who speaks both the language of actuaries and CFOs, understands the regulatory layer without getting lost in it, and can move things forward when stakeholders disagree. My last two missions illustrate this. I restructured the month-end closing process for a €2B+ insurance portfolio, cutting close cycles by 8 days while embedding new control requirements. Before that, I led the AMOA for a regulatory reporting transformation—200+ data points, three separate systems, six business units. We shipped on time and passed the regulator's validation on first submission.

The honest part: I'm currently independent and built to work as interim or fixed-term, not necessarily as a CDI resource. I move fast and leave clean handover. If you need someone who can parachute in, diagnose the real problem quickly, and deliver without committee meetings, that's me.

If this matches what you're building, let's talk specifics. My calendar is here: calendly.com/xrobitaille/30min. Or reach me at xro@xavier-robitaille.com.
