I bring 25 years of finance and insurance transformation experience directly aligned with what Capco needs: I've spent my career sitting at the intersection of regulatory change, operating model redesign, and delivery discipline—exactly where CFOs face their biggest obstacles.

My last two roles prove this fit. At Crédit Mutuel (2023–2024), I rebuilt the finance function's control architecture across IFRS 17 implementation, redesigning processes and stakeholder governance for a team reporting to the CFO. Before that, I spent three years as interim Finance Manager at a major French insurer, owning the transition from legacy reporting to modern regulatory frameworks (Solvency II, ICAAP, ILAAP). I didn't just define requirements; I managed the full lifecycle—technology selection, process mapping, control embedding, and handoff to permanent teams.

I understand the specifics you're after: Basel and regulatory harmonization, ERP implementations, how to thread finance strategy through risk and compliance without creating silos, and how to actually move stakeholders from "we need to transform" to "here's the new normal." I've led these conversations with boards and CFOs, not just project teams.

One honest gap: I've worked as a freelance consultant and interim manager, not in a traditional consulting firm. But that's actually an advantage here. I know how transformation actually lands in finance teams—the political currents, the legacy systems that resist change, the moment when a CFO's commitment becomes real. I'll bring that practitioner clarity to client engagements.

I'm ready to move into a London-based permanent role where I can scale impact across multiple clients. Let's talk about how my track record translates to Principal Consultant work at Capco.
