As an interim finance leader with 25 years in insurance, I bring exactly what you need: deep technical accounting knowledge, Lloyd's Market experience, and a track record of strengthening financial governance under regulatory pressure.

I've spent my entire career at the intersection of technical accounting, regulatory reporting, and operational delivery. Most recently, I led finance transformation programs for mid-sized insurance operations—redesigning closing processes, embedding control frameworks, and managing the reporting layer during periods of significant change. I understand the complexity: IFRS 17 implementation, balance sheet positioning, capital management, and the need to keep senior leadership informed while audit and regulators are watching.

What sets me apart is I don't just advise—I execute. I've managed liquidity and FX hedging discussions with treasury teams, reviewed accounting policy choices with CFOs facing regulatory scrutiny, and built PMO discipline around strategic finance initiatives. I work well with boards and senior leadership precisely because I bridge the gap between technical detail and business impact.

I'm qualified (CIMA, affiliate member of Lloyd's), fluent in London Market dynamics, and comfortable in the ambiguity that comes with interim mandates. I know my limitations too: I'm not a permanent CFO, and I work best where there's a clear scope and engaged leadership. But for a defined period of growth and governance tightening, I deliver.

I'm based in France currently but relocate regularly for the right mandate. Happy to discuss how this maps to your timeline and the specific control priorities you're facing.
