Dear Hiring Manager,

I bring 25 years of insurance and finance expertise directly aligned with Deloitte's Governance, Compliance & Data practice. My value lies in bridging the technical, regulatory, and operational gaps that most consultants miss—the intersection where CFO offices, compliance frameworks, and digital transformation actually need to work together.

Over the past decade, I've led mission-critical work in exactly this space. I redesigned financial close processes for a €2B+ insurer, reducing month-end closing time by 35% while embedding regulatory reporting controls that satisfied three concurrent audits. I built the data governance operating model for a captive insurance structure, defining ownership, quality standards, and audit trails that enabled their move to automated reporting. Most recently, I managed the AMOA for a digital reporting transformation spanning actuarial, accounting, and risk—€1.2M scope, delivered on time, zero regulatory findings.

The pattern is consistent: I don't just advise on what needs to change. I own the delivery, align the stakeholders (Finance, IT, Actuariat, Risk, Compliance), and ensure the solution sticks. I speak both the language of actuaries and CFOs, and I know where real friction lives.

One honest point: I've worked primarily as an independent consultant and interim manager, not in traditional employee structures. But Deloitte's model—leveraging senior expertise across client engagements—suits how I work best. I deliver impact fast and move on, which is exactly what complex CFRO transformations need.

I'd welcome a conversation about how your clients navigate the tension between innovation and compliance in insurance. That's where I add the most value.

Best regards,

Xavier Robitaille
