Re : Principal – Strategic Investments & Corporate Development

Green PowerHouse invests its own capital and executes the strategies it recommends, and the Principal role sits at the point where strategy, investment judgment and execution meet, working directly with the Chairman and Group CEO across sectors and jurisdictions. That combination is where 25 years in insurance and in finance can add real value.

At Primexis, I built the insurance business unit from scratch: 20 people, 10 clients, €3m in revenue, and I sat on the Comex. Standing up a business inside a group, with full accountability for its commercial outcome, is close to what this role asks.

The same rigor applies to financial due diligence. At CNP, I automated the projected financial production across asset classes (P&L, cash flows) and the Solvency II investment reporting: €350bn in assets, SimCorp Dimension from design to go-live, delivered in 18 months. Numbers at that scale demand the same discipline in an investment decision as in a quarterly close.

Four years at SCOR included two as chief transformation officer of the investment function. At Clearwater Analytics, I acted as senior programme director, running several parallel SaaS implementations of an R2R solution, with monthly sponsor committees at executive level and consolidated tracking of deliverables, milestones and resources on Monday.com, including for the Luxembourg client Luxempart. Both mandates called for the judgment this role needs: coordinating senior stakeholders across finance, IT and operations around decisions with real financial consequences.

I operate as an independent consultant today. Nevertheless, I am perfectly open to a permanent role, directly or after an initial engagement period.

I would be happy to discuss how this experience applies to Green PowerHouse's investment and transformation pipeline.

Best regards,

Xavier Robitaille
