Re : Strategic Project Manager (Finance) - Remote

Coordinating strategic finance projects with top management, across budgeting, forecasting, financial modeling, compliance and reporting, demands someone who can move between technical detail and executive-level communication without losing either. That is the intersection I have built my practice around for 25 years, in insurance and in finance.

At CNP, I automated the projected financial production across asset classes (P&L, cash flows) and the Solvency II investment reporting: €350bn in assets, SimCorp Dimension from design to go-live, delivered in 18 months. That project required the same discipline this role calls for: turning regulatory and modeling requirements into a delivery plan that senior stakeholders could track.

At Coface, I rolled out IFRS 9 in stages over four years: successive POCs, ECL methodology, accounting schemes, UAT, coordination with the depositary CACEIS. I also built the investment Data Warehouse there, defining fields, table structure, and input/output controls, work directly relevant to the reporting and compliance side of this mandate.

More recently, as senior programme director for Clearwater Analytics, I ran several parallel R to R SaaS implementations, each with monthly sponsor committees at senior management level and consolidated tracking of deliverables, milestones and resources on Monday.com, including a Luxembourg client, Luxempart. That is the governance model a role coordinating with top management needs.

I operate as an independent consultant today. Nevertheless, I am perfectly open to a permanent role, directly or after an initial engagement period. If this position sits at a senior, strategic level within the organization, my experience matches it directly; if it operates at a more intermediate level, I can just as easily calibrate my involvement to fit.

I would be happy to discuss how this experience applies to the scope of this role.

Best regards,

Xavier Robitaille
