Re : Financial Services Consultant (Remote)

Scaling financial infrastructure for a gig-economy platform means building compliance and reporting processes that can handle high transaction volumes without slowing the business down. That combination, regulatory rigor plus operational speed, is where I've spent the last 25 years in insurance and in finance.

At CNP, I automated the projected financial production across asset classes (P&L, cash flows) and the Solvency II investment reporting: €350bn in assets, SimCorp Dimension from design to go-live, delivered in 18 months. That kind of reporting automation is directly applicable to analyzing financial data and producing reliable output at scale.

At Coface, I rolled out IFRS 9 in stages over four years: successive POCs, ECL methodology, accounting schemes, testing, coordination with the custodian CACEIS. I also built a Data Warehouse for investments there, covering field definitions, table structure, and input/output controls, the kind of data foundation both compliance work and financial modeling depend on.

As senior programme director for Clearwater, I ran several parallel implementations of an R to R SaaS solution, with monthly sponsor committees at executive level and consolidated tracking of deliverables, milestones, and resources on Monday.com, including for Luxempart in Luxembourg. That experience translates directly to coordinating cross-functional teams and handling client-facing conversations on financial solutions.

Certified in Generative AI Primer (Vanderbilt, 2026) and GenAI for Account Executives (Yale, 2026), I now automate nearly all of my consulting activity through AI agents under Claude or GPT, which fits well with optimizing transaction flows and forecasting work.

I operate as an independent consultant today. Nevertheless, I am perfectly open to a permanent role, directly or after an initial engagement period, and a contract engagement fits my current setup well.

I would be happy to discuss how this reporting and compliance experience applies to your client's gig-economy platform.

Best regards,

Xavier Robitaille
