Re : Strategic Project Lead (Remote)

A Strategic Project Lead working across time zones, aligning technology delivery with business objectives, and managing stakeholders at every level, that is the exact shape of work I have built my career around, in insurance and in finance, for 25 years. A global leader building AI-driven solutions needs that discipline applied consistently, not occasionally.

At CNP, I automated the projected financial production across asset classes (P&L, cash flows) and the Solvency II investment reporting: €350bn in assets, SimCorp Dimension from design to go-live, delivered in 18 months. That is the scale of technology-and-business alignment this role calls for.

As senior programme director on Clearwater implementations, I ran several R to R SaaS rollouts in parallel, with monthly sponsor committees at senior management level and consolidated management of deliverables, milestones, and resources on a dedicated tool (Monday.com), including the engagement with Luxempart in Luxembourg. That governance model, tracked centrally while teams work across borders, is what keeps a distributed program on schedule.

At Coface, IFRS 9 rolled out in stages over four years: successive proof-of-concepts, ECL methodology, accounting entries, UAT, coordination with the depositary CACEIS. I also built the investment Data Warehouse there, from field definitions to input and output controls. Coordinating finance, IT, and external parties on the same delivery plan was the daily job.

Certified Generative AI Primer (Vanderbilt, 2026) and GenAI for Account Executives (Yale, 2026), I now automate nearly all of my entrepreneurial activity through AI agents running on Claude or GPT, which gives me direct, current experience with the kind of AI-driven delivery this position points to.

I operate as an independent consultant today. Nevertheless, I am perfectly open to a permanent role, directly or after an initial engagement period.

I would be happy to discuss how this experience applies to the program you have in mind.

Best regards,

Xavier Robitaille
