Re : Strategic Project Manager (Finance) - Remote

Leading strategic finance projects that turn financial data into decisions for senior leadership, while keeping GAAP and IFRS compliance intact across cross-functional teams, is a specific kind of pressure test, especially when budgeting, forecasting, and variance analysis all sit inside the same mandate.

At CNP Assurances, I rebuilt investment accounting production under Solvency II constraints, covering 350 billion euros in assets under management, and delivered the redesign in 18 months, on schedule. That work included financial modeling to evaluate feasibility and ROI, then translating results into numbers senior stakeholders could act on directly. I've also led full SimCorp Dimension and Clearwater Analytics implementations, from design through production cutover, coordinating finance, actuarial, and IT teams who rarely start from the same assumptions. On the compliance side, I've run IFRS 9, IFRS 17, and Solvency II reporting cycles directly, including ORSA and SFCR/QRT production, under ACPR scrutiny, with the process discipline that regulatory sign-off demands. I hold PMP certification, which formalized what 25 years of program delivery had already built.

My ERP experience sits in investment management systems, SimCorp Dimension and Clearwater, rather than broad corporate ERP platforms like SAP or Oracle.

Worth a call to walk through how this maps to your financial infrastructure work?
