I bring 25 years of insurance and finance expertise directly aligned with what you need for this Controllership role. My background spans general ledger stewardship, balance sheet reconciliation, regulatory reporting (including reinsurance schedules), and building controls frameworks—the exact foundation your new function requires.

Most recently, I led controllership and financial close redesigns for mid-market insurers facing similar challenges: fragmented source systems, reconciliation backlogs, and audit pressure. At one specialty insurer, I established a centralized controllership function that reduced month-end close by 40%, eliminated aged reconciliation gaps, and embedded audit-ready evidence protocols across both gross and reinsurance accounting. The team went from reactive firefighting to proactive control management within six months.

I'm comfortable in hybrid arrangements and thrive working embedded with stakeholders—Finance leadership, Internal Audit, External Audit, and operations teams. I speak both technical accounting and business priorities, which matters when you're explaining why a reconciliation framework exists and how it reduces risk.

One honest point: I typically work as an independent consultant. What draws me to this fixed-term contract is exactly what you've described—building something new with real accountability and measurable outcomes. The 12-month runway gives me time to establish processes properly rather than just patch-fix urgent issues.

I'm ready to discuss how I'd structure the early weeks and where I'd prioritize first. Let's schedule a call.
