I bring 25 years of insurance and finance expertise—the kind that bridges technical depth, regulatory complexity, and delivery discipline. Most teams need someone who speaks both actuarial and operations, who can redesign a closing process or rebuild a PMO without getting lost in either domain. That's where I add real value.

My last three missions show the pattern. I restructured the finance operating model for a €2B+ mutual insurer, cutting month-end close from 18 to 9 days while embedding new controls across 40+ entities —delivered in 14 months with zero regulatory friction. Before that, I led PMO and business analysis for a major regulatory reporting transformation (Solvency II, IFRS 17), coordinating 60+ stakeholders across Finance, Risk, and IT to land a three-year program on time. Most recently, I managed the CFO office function for a mid-cap financial services group, handling capital planning, investor reporting, and strategic M&A work in parallel.

The honest gap: I work as an independent consultant and interim manager, not a permanent employee. That's deliberate—it lets me move into high-stakes situations where clarity and execution matter more than politics. But I'm open to the right full-time role if the mission justifies it.

Let's talk if you need someone who can own a real problem, not just fill a seat.
