I bring 25 years of experience in finance and insurance transformation, with a track record piloting complex, multi-stakeholder programs through regulatory and organizational complexity. Your project—modernizing data collection, treatment, and governance across a public institution—sits exactly in my wheelhouse: I've spent my career where technical rigor meets compliance constraints meets political alignment.

My last three years as interim PMO lead for a major French insurer taught me the specific discipline this role demands. I managed the rollout of a new financial reporting system across 12 internal teams and 4 external partners, with hard dependencies on regulatory timelines. I owned the governance cadence—COFIL, steering committees, weekly ops standups—and learned to arbitrate quickly when stakeholders pulled in different directions. The system went live on time, within budget, with zero restatement issues. That's the kind of outcome-focused delivery 'escent needs.

I'm fluent in both structured methodology (I hold PRINCE2; have worked extensively with Quapital-adjacent frameworks) and the hybrid agile/waterfall rhythm that real projects demand. I've also spent enough time in insurance regulation to read the room when institutional or compliance concerns surface—and to move faster once they're resolved.

One honest point: I've been freelance the past three years, so there's a shift back to structured corporate rhythm here. That's actually the appeal. I thrive on complex governance and the clarity that comes with clear sponsorship and defined scope.

I'm ready to discuss how my background maps to your timeline and stakeholder landscape. Let's talk this week.
