I'm writing because my background aligns closely with what you're building at Aviva Investors—and because I know the specific terrain of change delivery in asset management and insurance.

For 25 years I've worked exclusively in insurance and finance, most recently leading complex transformation programmes where change touched clients, operations, and compliance simultaneously. I've delivered multi-workstream change programmes across PMO, process redesign, and regulatory reporting—the exact mix your role demands. What matters: I've spent the last decade managing precisely this dynamic: stakeholder alignment across business sponsors, technical teams, and client-facing operations, with clear governance and measurable outcomes.

In 2023-2024, I led a programme redesign across a major insurer's finance function—seven concurrent workstreams, three business units, regulatory constraints, and zero room for scope creep. Built the governance structure from scratch, maintained weekly steering cadence with C-suite sponsors, and delivered £2M in operational benefit realisation within the first 18 months post-implementation. The model stuck because I front-loaded adoption planning and kept reporting ruthlessly transparent.

The constraints I've worked in are yours: client impact, regulatory heartbeat, operational complexity. I'm comfortable with ambiguity early, disciplined about clarity as execution progresses. I speak both languages—strategic and operational—which is where most change initiatives actually break.

One honest note: I've worked as an independent consultant since 2020, which means I move between roles by design. This is a fixed 6-month mandate—exactly my rhythm. I'm looking to contribute depth and then move on, which means you get someone focused entirely on delivery, not political positioning.

I'd be straightforward about the scope, risks, and dependencies on day one. I suspect you'd find that useful.

I'm available to discuss how my specific experience maps to your client change priorities.
