I bring 25 years of finance and insurance transformation experience directly into this role. My career sits at the intersection of technical depth, regulatory complexity, and delivery discipline—exactly where Lead Delivery Consultant work lives at Capco.

I've spent the last decade leading cross-functional programmes that mirror your scope: redesigning trading operations, overhauling post-settlement processes, and realigning asset management platforms to match business strategy and technology reality. At Expert Zone Advisory, I've managed PMO governance and AMOA delivery for insurers and financial institutions navigating similar transformations—defining future states, optimizing workflows, managing organizational change, and ensuring teams stay aligned when business and IT priorities diverge.

Concrete example: I recently led a post-settlement redesign for a mid-market financial services firm, working across Operations, Finance, and Systems teams. We mapped current processes, identified 18% efficiency gaps driven by legacy data flows, redesigned the workflow, and embedded the new model with training and governance. The result was measurable—faster settlement cycles, reduced manual handoffs, and sustainable adoption.

That's the kind of work I do well: take complex, multi-stakeholder programmes, apply domain expertise, hold teams accountable to execution, and deliver outcomes that stick.

One honest point: I've worked as an independent consultant and interim exec for the last several years, not in traditional employed roles. Capco's culture and scale appeal to me because they combine deep industry expertise with real delivery discipline. I'm genuinely interested in a full-time, high-impact role where I can apply this experience at scale.

I'm based in the Brussels region and available to discuss this immediately.
