Dear Harmonie Mutuelle,

I'm applying for the Chef de Projet EPM role because my background directly matches what you're building. I've spent 25 years in insurance and finance—the last decade specifically delivering EPM transformations, Oracle implementations, and BI deployments that move from pilot to production at scale.

What matters for this role: I've parametered Essbase and Planning in regulated environments where recette discipline and data governance aren't optional. I built reporting infrastructure for two mutual insurers where I owned the link between business requirements and technical delivery—exactly your "interface between métier and DSI" mandate. Most recently, I led a multi-phase Oracle Essbase migration for a €2B+ mutual, managing stakeholder alignment across Finance, Actuariat, and Operations while keeping MCO stable. That combination of technical depth (Essbase, SQL, data architecture) and project orchestration is what this post needs.

I'm a consultant, which is honest context: I thrive when scope is clear, deadlines matter, and I own outcomes. CDI roles in corporate environments are new ground for me, but I've embedded in teams long enough to understand the rhythm—and Angers' finance transformation is exactly the kind of work where I perform best.

Let's talk about your current state with Essbase and Planning, what's broken in your process automation, and whether my experience solves a real problem.

Available to meet this week.
