

I'm missing the core details to write this letter effectively. The offer shows no employer name, position title, location, or job description—all critical to make this genuine rather than generic.

Here's what I need:

1. Employer name (or industry if confidential)
2. Position title (Finance Manager? PMO? Transformation lead?)
3. Location (onsite/remote/hybrid?)
4. Key responsibilities (3-4 bullet points)
5. Why Xavier? (what triggered this specific opportunity?)

Without these, I'd write a templated letter that wastes both your time and theirs. Xavier's profile is strong—25 years in insurance/finance, rare combo of technical depth + PMO delivery + stakeholder alignment—but that only lands if it solves their actual problem.

Give me the job details and I'll write something tight (250-300 words) that opens doors.
