Re : Chief of Staff / Direction de la Transformation

Renforcing a Transformation Department while a European insurance group runs a growth trajectory across strategic, organizational, and operational fronts is a different kind of brief than a standard consulting engagement. It calls for someone who can move between senior governance and the detail of an operating model redesign in the same week.

That's the split I've worked across for 25 years in insurance and finance. At CNP, I rebuilt the investment accounting production line under Solvency II constraints, covering 350 billion euros in assets, delivered in 18 months and on schedule. That work meant scoping the target operating model, sequencing workstreams with actuarial and IT, and preparing the materials that went to the steering committee. On another mandate, I led a data migration and account cleanup program tied to a general ledger changeover, building the reconciliation logic and the UAT plan that let the business sign off without disruption to closing. Both required the same thing this role asks for: structuring ambiguity into a roadmap, then staying close enough to execution to catch what governance slides miss.

I run as an independent consultant today, and I'd be glad to bring that experience into a fixed role at this group, either directly or after an initial mission period to prove fit on both sides.

Worth a call to see where the current transformation priorities stand.
