I'm drawn to this role because SimCorp's front-office consulting work aligns directly with where I've delivered the most impact: at the intersection of complex financial processes, regulatory constraints, and hard delivery timelines.

Over 25 years in finance and insurance, I've spent the last decade as a senior consultant advising asset managers and insurers on portfolio management systems, trading infrastructure, and regulatory reporting—exactly the domain expertise your Investments team needs. I've led implementations where I had to be both the trusted technical advisor and the person who could explain intricate derivative valuation logic to a CFO or compliance officer. That's not generic consulting; that's what this role actually demands.

On my last two mandates, I managed the end-to-end configuration of front-office systems for a €15B AUM fund manager (portfolio management, order routing, performance attribution) and rebuilt the regulatory reporting infrastructure for an insurer managing Solvency II compliance across 800+ instruments. Both required me to own the business requirements, translate them into system design, and drive cross-functional alignment under real pressure. I bring that same discipline to every engagement.

I recognize the shift from independent consulting to a structured corporate environment is different. But I'm at the point in my career where I want to build something with a team—to work on consecutive, complex mandates with clients who matter, supported by a real organization. SimCorp's people-centered culture and your focus on knowledge-sharing across the EMEA team appeals to me precisely because it's the opposite of siloed contract work.

The three-week Dimension Academy won't be wasted on me. I'll complete it and be operational on your client base immediately after.

I'd welcome a conversation about how my background in front-office transformation can support your team's growth.
