I bring 25 years of hands-on finance transformation experience directly aligned with what Capco needs. My work spans regulatory reporting, liquidity and solvency frameworks, process redesign, and ALM advisory—the exact scope of your Finance Manager role. Unlike consultants who theorize, I've delivered these outcomes in real banking environments where execution matters.

Over the past eight years, I've led major programs for institutional finance teams: a complete liquidity risk operating model redesign for a mid-sized bank (daily stress testing, regulatory reporting integration, team restructuring), regulatory reporting overhauls touching COREP and FINREP frameworks, and solvency optimization initiatives that improved RWA modeling. I understand the gap between elegant strategy and operational reality. I speak both languages—what CFOs need to hear and what controllers need to implement.

I'm positioned as a senior independent consultant, not a full-time hire. That's honest context: I bring PMO discipline and stakeholder alignment skills from running complex multi-team programs, but I'm currently outside the traditional consulting firm structure. That said, I've worked embedded in finance teams that operate like internal consulting units, and I deliver the same rigor and velocity Capco clients expect.

I'm fluent in French and English, hold an engineering degree, and have built deep networks across French and European banking institutions. I'm interested in exploring whether a management role at Capco—potentially blending fixed commitment with project flexibility—could work for both sides.
