I'm an experienced PMO Manager with 25 years in finance and insurance transformation, and I've set up and scaled PMO functions through exactly the kind of complex programmes Freshwater describes.

My last two assignments are relevant. At a major French insurer, I established a PMO governance framework for a €40m finance operating model transformation—25+ workstreams, 60+ stakeholders across Finance, Risk, and IT. I introduced integrated planning, risk dashboards in Smartsheet, and weekly steering cadences that gave the CFO real-time visibility. The programme delivered on time and 8% under budget. Before that, I ran PMO and AMOA for a regulatory reporting overhaul across two insurance entities, managing dependencies, reporting workflows, and stakeholder alignment across 18 months of regulatory change.

I know how to build governance that sticks—not bureaucracy that slows things down. I'm comfortable leading small teams, setting delivery standards, and translating technical complexity into clean reports for senior leadership. I work fluent in Jira and Smartsheet. My strength is turning visibility into momentum: unclear plans become clear, risks surface early, and stakeholders know exactly where they stand.

The one honest point: I'm currently freelance (via my consulting entity, Expert Zone Advisory). I take 12-month fixed contracts regularly and thrive in them. I'm UK tax resident and can start immediately.

I'd welcome a call to discuss how I'd shape the governance approach for this programme.
