I bring 25 years of insurance and finance expertise where technical depth, regulatory rigor, and delivery discipline intersect. I've spent my career solving problems at that specific crossroads—where finance transformation requires both operational clarity and stakeholder alignment across functions that don't naturally speak the same language.

Most recently, I led PMO and financial process redesign for large insurers navigating regulatory change and system modernization. One project: I restructured a finance operating model across three entities, cutting closing cycles by 40% while embedding new controls for a major regulatory shift. Another: delivered actuarial reporting infrastructure supporting €2B+ in reserve calculations under tightened timelines. These aren't theoretical wins—they required translating between CFO office priorities, IT constraints, and actuarial complexity under real pressure.

I work best on high-stakes, visibility-critical missions where judgment and execution discipline add real value. I'm currently independent (Expert Zone Advisory), which means I move fast and own outcomes. If you need someone embedded who understands both the numbers and the system to move them, I'm worth a conversation.
