I'm a senior finance consultant with 25 years in insurance—every single day of it. I've spent the last decade delivering interim finance leadership on complex transformation programmes, which is exactly what Arthur's client needs during this 18-month push.

What I bring here: I know insurance finance inside out. I've rebuilt closing processes for £2bn+ balance sheets, led regulatory reporting through Solvency II transitions, and managed external audits through significant system changes. I've prepared monthly management accounts under pressure, maintained control frameworks through merger integration, and worked alongside CFOs and Financial Controllers as a trusted peer, not just support. Hybrid London? I'm based 92150, commute is straightforward.

I'm also honest about what I am. I'm a freelance consultant, not looking for a permanent role. That clarity matters—you get someone committed to delivery for exactly 18 months, not someone negotiating their exit plan in month 12. I bring pace and focus because interim assignments are where I work best.

I've done this role before. Not just finance operations—the full picture. Management reporting. Audit coordination. Controls. Projects. The working closely with senior finance leadership part is where I add most value.

Let's talk. Happy to walk through specific insurance finance scenarios or my last two interim mandates.
