Re : Consultant or Project Leader, Insurance

Reshaping finance and risk functions for insurance groups while managing capital and value creation is exactly where technical depth and delivery discipline meet, and that combination is harder to find than either skill alone.

At CNP, I rebuilt the investment accounting production line under Solvency II constraints: 350 billion euros in assets, an 18-month delivery, on time, with the sub-ledger and control framework still standing today. That work sat at the intersection of actuarial, finance, and IT, which is the same intersection this role asks for. On another mandate, I led the IFRS 9 transition for a life insurer's investment portfolio, covering ECL methodology, amortized cost, and classification, and closed the gap between technical accounting requirements and what the finance function could actually produce each month. I've also run fast-close redesigns where the constraint wasn't technical knowledge but stakeholder alignment: getting actuarial, risk, and finance teams to agree on a single closing calendar and stick to it. That's the same interpersonal work this role names explicitly, managing multiple client relationships and influencing an agenda across functions that don't naturally speak the same language.

I currently work independently, but I'm open to a permanent role in Paris, whether that starts directly or after an initial period working as a mission.

Happy to walk through any of these in more detail on a call.
