Re : Head of Transformation

Reorganising a regulated financial services group around AI after the pilots have already worked is a different problem than running another proof of concept. It needs someone who can turn board ambition into a funded, sequenced programme and hold the line between the C-suite, the technologists, and a workforce watching its own job descriptions change.

At CNP, I rebuilt investment accounting production under Solvency II constraints across 350 billion euros of assets under management, delivered in 18 months, on time, with the actuarial, finance, and IT teams still trusting each other at the end of it. That's the same triangle this role sits in: technical accuracy, regulatory exposure, and people who need to believe the change is being run competently. Separately, I led a general ledger migration where the hard part wasn't the mapping tables, it was getting finance teams to stop running shadow processes once the new system went live. Both cases needed the same discipline the MAS governance point in this brief is asking for: rules that hold up under scrutiny without stalling adoption.

Hybrid work has been standard practice for me for years, most recently at Clearwater, where distributed delivery across time zones was the default, not an exception. As a contractor who is a non-UK Tax resident, based overseas, IR35 does not apply to me.

Worth a call to see where the roadmap stands today.
