Dear Hiring Manager,

I bring 25 years of insurance expertise and a rare combination of technical depth, operational delivery discipline, and stakeholder alignment—exactly what a 560M€ multiline agricultural transformation demands.

My value here is direct: I've led comparable programs where strategy meets complexity. At Expert Zone Advisory, I design operating models and drive delivery across finance, underwriting, and IT—the same intersections your MRA refonte requires. I've managed enterprise-wide portfolio redesigns, modernized underwriting tools, and kept cross-functional teams aligned when priorities conflict. I know how to hold the vision while sweating the execution details: timelines, budgets, scope creep, technical feasibility.

Concrete example: I ran a 18-month insurance product simplification and platform migration touching 12 departments and 400M€ revenue. We rationalized SKUs, rebuilt pricing models, and delivered a new quoting system without losing competitive position. The discipline was the same as your MRA playbook—global coherence, modernized workflows, operational efficiency.

One honest point: I'm independent and freelance-based. I've chosen that model for control and flexibility, but I'm equally comfortable in structured corporate environments when the mission matters. This role pulls me precisely because it's strategic, visible, and genuinely difficult.

I'd like to discuss how I can hit the ground directing this program with minimal ramp-up. I'm available to start immediately.

Best regards,
Xavier Robitaille
