Re : Strategic Project Manager (Finance) - Remote

Translating financial data into decisions across a global technology organization, while keeping budgeting, forecasting and regulatory compliance moving in parallel: that's the real ask behind this Strategic Project Manager role.

At CNP, I rebuilt investment accounting production under Solvency II constraints: 350 billion euros in assets under management, delivered in 18 months, on schedule. That work combined financial modeling, variance analysis and coordination across Finance, Actuarial and IT, the same cross-functional setup this role needs. I also led SimCorp Dimension and Clearwater Analytics implementations end to end, from design through production, building the financial models used to test project feasibility before rollout. On the compliance side, I've worked across French GAAP, IFRS and US GAAP, handling IFRS 9 and IFRS 17 reporting and reconciliations built to hold up under regulatory review. Data migration is another piece of this: I've built OD entries through VBA and cleared aging suspense accounts during system cutovers, the kind of process work finance teams need when systems change under them.

Remote work is standard practice for me. My last engagement, at Clearwater, ran fully distributed, so the tools and habits of remote collaboration aren't new. As a contractor who is a non-UK Tax resident, based overseas, IR35 does not apply to me.

Worth a short call to see where this fits?
