Dear MLAdvisory team,

I'm reaching out because your transformation mandate in Finance and Risk aligns directly with where I create the most value: orchestrating complex SI implementations where technical depth, regulatory constraints, and delivery discipline converge.

Over 25 years in insurance and finance, I've spent the last decade as a senior interim manager driving transformation programmes where the stakes are high and alignment fragile. At a major French insurer, I redesigned the Finance operating model and led the PMO for a €40M+ regulatory reporting system implementation—coordinating actuaries, IT, compliance, and a 200+ stakeholder ecosystem to hit a hard regulatory deadline. At another, I rebuilt the Finance/IT governance structure and owned end-to-end delivery of a three-year transformation covering processes, controls, data architecture, and team capability. The pattern is consistent: I enter situations where visibility is low, complexity is real, and the business needs someone who speaks both languages—technical and executive.

What I bring is not generic consulting polish. It's 25 years of hands-on domain knowledge (regulatory reporting, data frameworks, control design, closing processes), proven ability to keep large programmes moving when they stall, and the judgment to separate what matters from what doesn't. I work comfortably at the CFO office level, which I suspect you need for your clients.

The honest gap: I've operated as an independent consultant and interim manager, not in a firm structure. I'm drawn to MLAdvisory because your model—strong partner involvement, focus on delivery quality, and missions selected for impact rather than billable hours—mirrors how I already work. The move to a permanent position with a team that shares this ethos is compelling to me.

I'd welcome a conversation about how to channel this experience into your client transformation agenda.

Best regards,

Xavier Robitaille
