Re : Strategic Project Manager (Finance) - Remote

Leading strategic finance projects at a company modernizing its financial infrastructure means someone has to turn budgeting, forecasting and ROI models into decisions leadership can act on, while keeping GAAP and IFRS compliance intact under real delivery pressure. That's the core of this role, and it's the work I've done for 25 years in insurance and finance.

At CNP Assurances, I rebuilt investment accounting production under Solvency II constraints across 350 billion euros in assets under management, delivering in 18 months, on time. I've led SimCorp Dimension and Clearwater Analytics implementations from design through production, coordinating finance, actuarial and IT teams with conflicting priorities and hard regulatory deadlines. On IFRS 9 and IFRS 17 projects, I built financial models for ECL calculation, amortized cost and asset categorization, work that maps directly onto the financial modeling and feasibility analysis this role asks for. Cross-functional stakeholder management with senior leadership has been a constant across these mandates, not a side skill.

My track record is entirely in insurance and asset management finance. I haven't worked inside a technology or internet company, so the sector context would be new, though the finance discipline transfers directly.

Happy to walk through specifics on a call if that's useful.
