Re : Strategic Project Manager (Finance) - Remote

Leading strategic finance projects that convert complex financial data into decisions senior leadership can act on, while modernizing financial infrastructure for a global technology player, is a mandate that needs someone who has actually rebuilt broken finance processes under pressure, not just managed them on paper.

At CNP Assurances, I rebuilt investment accounting production under Solvency II constraints, covering 350 billion euros in assets under management, delivered in 18 months, on schedule. That work required translating IFRS 9 categorization rules and ECL methodology into a financial model senior stakeholders could actually use for decision-making, exactly the kind of financial modeling and cross-functional alignment this role requires. I also led a full closing process redesign to move a finance function toward fast-close, cutting manual reconciliations and clearing legacy suspense accounts through a structured cahier des charges and UAT cycle. On the systems side, I've taken SimCorp Dimension and Clearwater Analytics implementations from design through production, coordinating finance, actuarial, and IT teams with genuinely different priorities.

My 7-plus years threshold is covered several times over, but my depth sits in insurance and asset management finance rather than broad corporate tech industry finance. I'd like 30 minutes to walk through how that translates to your reporting and compliance priorities.
