Re : Head of Investment Management

Leading a 4-person investment team for pension and insurance assets under Solvency II means every fund selection, every diversification call, has to hold up in front of a board and a regulator at the same time. That combination of strategic latitude and governance discipline is where I've built most of my career.

At CNP, I rebuilt investment accounting production for a 350 billion euro portfolio under Solvency II constraints: coordinating with actuarial, risk and IT, redesigning controls, and delivering the new process in 18 months, on time, with no regulatory finding at handover. On another mandate, I ran the sub-ledger migration to Clearwater Analytics for an insurance investment book, covering fund selection data, reconciliations and reporting output design for investment committees. That project also set the template for how I work now: fully hybrid, remote-first for deep analytical work, on-site for committee presentations and stakeholder alignment, which matches the two-days-a-week model you're describing. I've also negotiated fee terms directly with asset managers and custodians as part of cost reviews, so the negotiation side of this role isn't new ground.

I haven't run ALM modeling myself, though I've worked closely with ALM teams on provisioning and portfolio construction decisions that depended on their output.

Happy to walk through the CNP and Clearwater work in more detail if that's useful.
