Your IFRS 17 transformation needs someone who's done this exact work—not just read about it. I bring 25 years in insurance finance, with concrete delivery on regulatory reporting, process redesign, and stakeholder alignment across finance, actuariat, and IT.

At BNP Paribas Cardif, I led the Solvency II closing redesign for a €80B portfolio—rebuilt reporting workflows, tightened controls, trained teams through go-live. The result: 40% faster month-end close, zero audit findings. That taught me how to translate complex regulations into clean operations. At Generali, I managed the PMO for a multi-year finance transformation covering general ledger, cost accounting, and management reporting for three legal entities. Same playbook: map the requirement, design the process, build accountability, deliver on time.

IFRS 17 is harder than those were—more actuarial complexity, tighter timelines, higher stakes for earnings. What helps is that I've worked alongside actuaries long enough to ask the right questions. I don't pretend to be an actuary, but I understand their constraints and how to bridge them with finance's needs. I'm equally comfortable advising the CFO on implementation phasing as I am sitting with the actuary on model assumptions and reporting logic.

I work as a senior independent consultant now, not because I couldn't stay inside, but because complex transformations often need that kind of outside bandwidth and perspective. I can move fast, work embedded in your team, and drive results without the overhead. One thing to flag: I'm built for project delivery and leadership, not for the traditional career ladder inside a firm. If that matters for your structure, worth discussing directly.
