I bring 25 years of insurance and finance expertise—the kind that actually moves transformation projects. I've spent my career at the intersection of technical depth, regulatory complexity, and delivery pressure, which means I don't need to learn your industry basics while we're solving the hard problems.

My last two engagements show the pattern: I led a full finance operating model redesign for a €2B+ insurance group, reshaping processes across closing, consolidation, and reporting—cutting month-end timelines by 40% while tightening controls. Before that, I ran PMO for a regulatory reporting transformation where the stakes were compliance risk and stakeholder alignment across Finance, Actuariat, and IT. Both landed on time. Both stuck.

What I bring: I'm comfortable holding complexity without losing sight of the actual deliverable. I can translate between CFO priorities and technical constraints. I know where regulatory and accounting realities force hard choices—and I know how to frame them so teams move forward instead of stalling.

The honest trade-off: I operate as a senior interim resource, not a permanent hire. That's not a weakness for the right mission—it's clarity. You get someone who owns the outcome immediately, isn't building political capital, and knows how to land change fast.

If you're building something that needs both technical grip and stakeholder navigation, let's talk. I'm at xro@xavier-robitaille.com or +33 6 64 89 09 43.
