

Dear Hiring Manager,

I'm drawn to this Chef de Projet role because QUANTEAM sits at the exact intersection where my 25 years of finance expertise translates directly: regulatory complexity, stakeholder alignment, and delivery discipline in high-stakes transformations.

What makes me useful here is not generic project management, but the ability to navigate front-to-back finance projects where technical depth, regulatory constraints, and tight execution timelines collide. I've spent the last decade doing exactly this—moving between CFO offices, PMO governance, and business analysis in insurance and banking environments that demanded fluency in both the numbers and the rules.

A concrete example: I led a compliance redesign program for a tier-1 asset manager facing EMIR and MiFID II obligations. The catch was the IT team and business had fundamentally different interpretations of the requirements. I sat between them—translating regulatory intent into system specifications, defining the gap, managing the trade-offs. We landed on time and budget. That's the work I know.

I'm also genuinely comfortable with products and systems. I've worked with Murex, risk architectures, trading workflows, and regulatory reporting pipelines. Excel, SQL, the operational realities of post-trade—not theoretical knowledge.

One honest note: I'm currently independent (Expert Zone Advisory). I'm genuinely interested in a structure where I can build something longer-term and contribute beyond delivery. If that's what QUANTEAM is looking for, we should talk.

I'm available to discuss how my experience maps to your current pipeline.

Best regards,
