Dear Hiring Manager,

I bring 25 years of insurance and finance expertise directly applicable to this role. My career has centered on designing and delivering complex projects at the intersection of business, operations, and technology—exactly what the Direction des Prestations aux Personnes needs.

What makes me valuable here: I've spent the last decade bridging technical delivery and business alignment in insurance environments. I've led program governance frameworks for health and claims operations, rebuilt process controls in claims handling, and translated regulatory constraints into workable operating models. At Expert Zone Advisory, I managed multi-stakeholder initiatives across finance, actuariat, and IT teams—the same cross-functional complexity you'll face managing Santé, Prévoyance, and Emprunteur projects.

Two concrete examples: I redesigned a claims triage process for a 4-million-customer portfolio, reducing cycle time by 22% while strengthening regulatory compliance. On another mandate, I piloted a shared services model for benefits administration that cut processing costs by 18% without compromising service quality. These aren't theoretical wins—they came from understanding both the technical constraints and the human dynamics of large insurance operations.

The honest gap: I've worked as an independent consultant and interim manager, not in a permanent role for five years. That's partly by choice—flexibility mattered—but I'm now looking for stability, a structured team, and the chance to build something longer-term. Your project portfolio and Crédit Mutuel's innovation focus appeal to me exactly because they require sustained commitment.

I'd welcome a conversation about how my background in insurance project delivery fits your needs. You can reach me at xro@xavier-robitaille.com or +33 6 64 89 09 43.

Best regards,
Xavier Robitaille
