Re : Senior Manager Financial Reporting

Meraki Talent is recruiting a Senior Manager to run two offshore financial reporting teams of up to 30 people, producing up to 700 sets of annual financial statements for hedge and private equity funds under US GAAP and IFRS. That volume, split across geographies, only works if the technical review layer and the team leadership are both solid at once.

I've spent 25 years in insurance and finance, most of it at the intersection of technical accounting and large-scale delivery. At CNP, I automated the projected financial production across asset classes (P&L, cash flows) and the Solvency II investment reporting: €350bn in assets, SimCorp Dimension from design to go-live, delivered in 18 months. That kind of work depends on getting the accounting logic right for every asset category before a single output is trusted by an auditor. At Coface, I built a Data Warehouse for investments, covering field definitions, table structure, and input/output controls, while rolling out IFRS 9 in stages over four years: successive POCs, ECL methodology, accounting entries, testing, and coordination with the custodian, CACEIS. Managing 16 people there taught me what it takes to keep technical accuracy consistent across a team under deadline pressure, which is the same problem this role is solving at a larger scale.

Working across geographies and time zones is not new territory for me. At Clearwater, as senior programme director, I ran several parallel implementations of a SaaS R to R solution remotely, with monthly senior sponsor committees and consolidated tracking of deliverables, milestones and resources on Monday.com. Hybrid and distributed working is simply how I operate.

I operate as an independent consultant today. Nevertheless, I am perfectly open to a permanent role, directly or after an initial engagement period. As a contractor who is a non-UK Tax resident, based overseas, IR35 does not apply to me.

I would be happy to discuss how this experience applies to the fund reporting portfolio at Meraki's client.

Best regards,
