I bring 25 years of insurance and finance expertise—the rare combination of deep technical knowledge, operational delivery discipline, and the ability to align finance, actuariat, IT, and risk teams around what actually matters.

I've spent my career in the spaces where regulatory constraints meet business pressure and organizational complexity. That's where I add the most value: leading transformation initiatives, redesigning closing processes, building PMO governance that sticks, and delivering regulatory reporting systems that pass audit on the first review.

Most recently, I led a complete operating model refactor for a mid-cap insurer—mapping new control structures, redesigning month-end close (cut cycle time by 35%), and implementing a single source of truth for actuarial reserves across three legacy systems. The finance team went from reactive to predictive. CFO got real visibility into the business three days earlier each month.

Before that, I spent two years as interim Finance Manager for a €2B+ mutual, where I rebuilt the reporting infrastructure from scratch and trained a team of 12 on the new framework—all while maintaining zero control breaks during transition.

I work best on defined missions with clear deliverables and measurable outcomes. I'm currently independent (Expert Zone Advisory), which gives me flexibility and focus—but I'm open to the right full-time role if it's a complex transformation where execution discipline and regulatory knowledge are non-negotiable.

Let's talk if you need someone who can move fast, communicate clearly across functions, and actually finish things.
