Dear Hiring Manager,

I'm writing to express strong interest in the Programme Director role at Albany Beck. After 25 years in insurance and financial services—the last decade focused explicitly on large-scale transformation delivery—I recognise this cloud migration programme as precisely where I add the most value: complex, regulated, high-stakes, and requiring someone who can move between technical rigour and stakeholder alignment without losing momentum.

My core strength is recovering and delivering programmes where technical complexity intersects with regulatory constraint and organisational friction. I've spent the last several years leading finance and operations transformation across insurance entities, managing multi-workstream deliveries with embedded PMO discipline. That work taught me how to structure chaos: establish a clear migration strategy, orchestrate dependencies across siloed teams (technology, infrastructure, security, business operations), and maintain executive visibility on what's actually moving versus what's stalled.

Two examples. First, I led a regulatory reporting redesign across three insurance entities—coordinating actuarial, finance, IT, and compliance teams simultaneously, delivering within a fixed compliance deadline. Second, I've managed major process transformation programmes where the success metric wasn't the tool—it was adoption and sustained operational control. Both required the same discipline: discovery, clear governance, realistic sequencing, and weekly course correction with stakeholders.

I should be direct about one thing: I'm currently an independent consultant through Expert Zone Advisory. I'm actively seeking a permanent role where I can commit fully to a single, meaningful programme. This role is that opportunity.

I'm based in the Île-de-France region and happy to relocate to London for a permanent engagement. I'd welcome a conversation about how I approach cloud migration governance and stakeholder recovery in regulated environments.

Best regards,

Xavier Robitaille
