Re : Fund Accountant / Controller - Senior Consultant

EY's Fund Accounting & Controlling team in Luxembourg sits at the intersection of complex fund structures, multi-GAAP reporting, and client relationships that need a steady hand. Real Estate and Private Equity portfolios raise the stakes further: NAV oversight, waterfall calculations, and investor reporting all have to hold up under scrutiny from auditors, depositaries, and AIFMs at the same time.

I have spent 25 years in insurance and in finance, most of it at the point where technical accounting meets regulatory pressure and delivery deadlines. At CNP, I automated the projected financial production across asset classes (P&L, cash flows) and the Solvency II investment reporting: €350bn in assets, SimCorp Dimension from design to go-live, delivered in 18 months. That work required the same discipline your role demands: reconciling data across systems, keeping reporting packages accurate under time pressure, and coordinating with stakeholders who each have their own priorities.

At Coface, I built a Data Warehouse for investments, covering the fields, table structure, and input/output controls, then rolled out IFRS 9 in stages over four years: successive proof-of-concepts, ECL methodology, accounting schemes, testing, and coordination with the depositary CACEIS. Managing that kind of multi-year rollout while keeping day-to-day reporting running is close to what fund controlling asks for: oversight of NAV, fee calculations, and investor reporting without breaking the client relationship in the process.

Later, as senior programme director at Clearwater, I ran several parallel implementations of an R2R SaaS solution, with monthly sponsor committees at executive level and consolidated tracking of deliverables, milestones, and resources on a dedicated tool (Monday.com). One of those clients was Luxempart, based in Luxembourg, which gives me a direct sense of the market EY operates in here.

I operate as an independent consultant today. Nevertheless, I am perfectly open to a permanent role, directly or after an initial engagement period.

I would be happy to discuss how this experience applies to your Real Estate and Private Equity client portfolio.

Best regards,
